

Dan's Dive Shop Presents: 2013 Great White Shark Trips to Isla Guadalupe, Mexico aboard the Nautilus Explorer.

Ever since I was a child I dreamt of diving with great white sharks, one of nature's most remarkable and misunderstood and most endangered creatures. See these amazing sharks go about their every day routine and bare witness to the beauty, grace and intelligence that they are now known to have.

The Great White shark is one of the most feared creatures in the world by so many people who don't understand them, but when you see them glide through the water in what appears to be a slow motion glide that seems to just continue on as they plane through the water column with the greatest of ease.

Seeing the sharks and experiencing this trip first hand was the most awe inspiring dream come true, surreal experience of my life and this trip was the most memorable and magical on so many levels.

We as humans are the worst predator of all and have nearly exterminated this graceful, incredible marvel of nature.

The once feared face of numerous books, magazines and movies, has finally begun earning the respect and appreciation of the human race, but is it too late? Has man destroyed our oceans so badly, that these endangered species will be only a memory for our future generations? Has man killed too many sharks for the shark population to bounce back?

Dive inside a shark cage and or atop the cage if you dare and shoot photos and video to your hearts content. Take your Digital Underwater Photography or
